When the client browser is open and the server is online, everything works fine. But if I close the browser and then reopen the browser or even if the server is not online when the client first connects, the socket disconnects (the socket is still open). I'm using a simple fallback server to simulate disconnection: socket.on('disconnect', function() { console.log('Disconnected. '); }); If I'm executing server.listen() on the same process (node app.js), the disconnection does not happen. If I leave the socket connection open in the background using: sockets.in('*').on('connection', function(socket) { socket.on('disconnect', function() { console.log('Disconnected. '); }); }); ...everything works fine. What could be the problem? How can I keep the socket connection open? Here is my server.js file code: const express = require('express'); const app = express(); const http = require('http').createServer(app); const io = require('socket.io')(http); app.get('/', function (req, res) { res.sendFile(__dirname e79caf774b
