We also provide free download links to the songs from these movies([eigenvalues\]) has a continuous spectrum. In a general case, when the previous formulas have to be used, we must take care of possible modifications in the structure of the continuous spectrum. Also, we must be sure that the spectrum of  $H_0$  is not degenerate and that the potentials are such that the spectrum of  $H$  is not degenerate and is bounded from above. This implies that we have to require that the sign of the discriminant of  $H_0$  be negative and that the potentials  $\phi_1$  and  $\phi_2$  be both greater than  $0$  (just  $\phi_2$  is required in the case of the constant sign of  $\phi_1$ ). Note that the usual method of rewriting the problem as a boundary value problem for a Sturm-Liouville equation is not applicable, since for instance, for the case of  $\phi_2=0$ , the corresponding differential equation has no regular solution (the initial function has to satisfy more conditions than a regular solution does). The more general form of the relativistic Tamm problem with a potential barrier was first studied by B. Horowitz in [Horowitz]. We shall not give any details for it here, since it is not needed in our present
