meeting, containing all the members of the society, and. (Calcutta: 1872-1876), 39 no.3. There was a. Com porter, Calcutta, 1874. \[p.11\]. at one time, Calcutta.Q: "The server principal "IIS APPPOOL\aspnetapp" is not able to access the database" - No app pool on the server I have a SQL Server 2014 SP1 with SP1 CU11. I installed the BIS (Backup Infrastructure Subscription) pack and I had this error: I then uninstalled BIS and reinstalled SQL Server. After installation I updated the server version in the control panel and used the SQL Server Management Studio to create a SQL Server Data Base and a SQL Server Log Database. But when I try to use the SQL Server Management Studio to connect to my database I get a new error: I searched and found this article: SQL Server Management Studio is unable to connect to SQL Server Database Engine because of a problem with the current security context (Error: 18456) To connect, this error message must be ignored. The message says that the server principal "IIS APPPOOL\ASP.NET v4.0" is not able to access the database "MSSQLSERVER". "ASP.NET v4.0" must be running under an account that has Windows Authentication enabled. If ASP.NET v4.0 is not running as a Service, it should be allowed to access the database. In order to connect to the database (but not to the database engine, as explained above), run `sqlcmd -E -S @"Data Source=localhost;Initial`

Catalog=master;User=sa;Password=123; " from a command prompt. To answer my own question: It seems that I could ignore this error with the right SQL Server Management Studio. I created a new instance of SSMS and now I can connect to my databases in the newly created SSMS. A: Try uninstalling BIS and reinstalling again to get rid of the uninstaller folders and then reinstall BIS again. The Standard.
