A: Your data is being split by the â€™. Your readline() function is reading the end of the line, and is terminating the string before the â€™ character. You need to change: while (toupper(fgets(buffer, MAX,stdin)!= NULL)) to: while (toupper(fgets(buffer, MAX,stdin))) Also, on top of the MAX value, you need to include a way to tell if you have read the entire string: while (toupper(fgets(buffer, MAX,stdin))) { if (strlen(buffer) == MAX) { printf("buffer too short "); return 1; } } Total Pageviews Monday, June 1, 2015 Our first meeting of the year! We had more people than we thought we would! There were a lot of vehicles lined up next to the road, way more than we expected! When we arrived, there was a ton of line, but once we got inside, we were fine! A lot of people were on their way out, so as we walked up to the front of the line we passed some people going through the front door. This was the closest we got to the front, but there were still a lot of people going through the front door. We were on the left side of the line (after security), and the people in the front were all at the front. It was loud! The music was blasting and the lights were flashing, but people were still dancing, so we didn't have to worry about it getting too loud. We were told they were having a fight, and that we should hurry and get our food because it wouldn't be long before it got out of hand. What do you know, it didn't get out of hand. People were grouped together and they had their way to go in. Those "our way" and "their way" lines were a lot more straight and clean than the one that would come later. After waiting in line for about 5 minutes, we made it through security and made our way back out
