Canada has the longest border with the United States of any country in the world. Source: Wikipedia So why is immigration not a bigger problem for Canada than for the U.S.? A: Both the U.S. and Canada are extremely large countries. The U.S. has 865,844,413 people (as of 2016), and the most recent Canadian Census reports (2016) is 23,425,894 people, a population of 2.2 persons per square mile. That is a vast country. There are many smaller countries where immigration is a more pressing issue (e.g. Cuba, Ethiopia, Somalia, etc). The U.S. and Canada have similar demographics, with large portions of their population being white, and a smaller portion of their population being of other races. However, Canada is a very welcoming nation. The policies of our governments are much more welcoming of those who come from all over the world, and there are fewer limitations than in the United States. Our governments have been at the forefront of welcoming those who may have previously been turned away. There have been no walls erected between our nations. The people of Canada are much more welcoming of those who come here from other countries than the people of the U.S.A., and Canada has been more successful in helping them integrate. While our immigration policy is much more open than the U.S.A., there have been some major problems with terrorism, like 9-11, and attempts to prevent terrorists from coming into the U.S.A. A: The big reason is that we are

When I do kubectl create deployment --image=nginx --replicas=1 && kubectl expose deployment nginx --type=NodePort I get: gub.io/nginx-ingress-controller/golang:1.14.2 (image:gub.io/nginx-ingress-controller/golang:1.14.2) ... error: Service "nginx-ingress-controller" unknown; if you meant to run a different service, please amend the command The helm chart uses 1.4.2 and I tried with 1.14.2 but without success. A: Try to change the nginx-ingress-controller to nginx-ingress and redeploy it. PS: I'm assuming the pod is ok because the service itself is working, if not please update the question with details such as command and logs of pod. Merkel cell carcinoma of the skin: a review. Merkel cell carcinoma is a rare, locally aggressive, neuroendocrine cutaneous neoplasm that occurs principally in sun-exposed areas of older white men. Merkel cell carcinoma is a biologically aggressive tumor with a propensity for metastatic spread and is associated with a poor prognosis. The diagnosis of Merkel cell carcinoma is based on the identification of characteristic cells that are round, polygonal, or oval with fine, stippled chromatin, large oval to round nucleoli, and abundant eosinophilic cytoplasm. The small number of studies that address the management of Merkel cell carcinoma suggest that surgical excision with at 79a2804d6b
